

Contributor Terms

Purpose of the Community

This non-commercial platform exists to share practical thinking, experience, and insight on strategy, operations, supply chains, and organizational development. It is a curated expert community built on trust, independent thinking, and mutual respect.

It's a space for professionals exploring how business, process, and technology can truly work as one — to deliver business growth now, next, and beyond.

Ownership of the Platform

The platform, its brand, structure, design, and overall concept are owned and managed by the founder. This includes the right to curate, organize, and develop the site as a coherent whole.

Ownership of Content

Contributors retain full ownership and intellectual property rights to their original content, including blog posts, articles, viewpoints, and other materials they create and submit.

Your ideas remain yours.

License to Publish

By contributing content, you grant the platform a non-exclusive, royalty-free, perpetual license to:

- publish, display, and distribute the content on the site
- archive the content as part of the platform's history
- reference or promote the content in connection with the platform (e.g. summaries, newsletters, social channels)

This license does not prevent you from republishing or using your content elsewhere.

Attribution

All published content will be associated with the author's real identity, but displayed on the platform under the contributor's username, unless explicitly agreed otherwise.

Editing and Curation

To ensure clarity, consistency, and quality, the platform owner may make minor editorial adjustments (such as formatting, headlines, or language corrections). The original meaning and intent of the contributor's content will not be altered.

Independence of Views

The views and opinions expressed by contributors are their own and do not necessarily represent those of the platform or other members of the community.

Disclaimer

Content shared on the platform reflects the contributors' perspectives and is provided for general informational purposes only.

Leaving the Community

If a contributor chooses to leave the community:

- previously published content will normally remain available under the contributor's name, as part of the platform's body of work
- requests for removal may be discussed in good faith, taking into account the integrity and continuity of the platform

Misuse and Moderation

The platform is moderated to maintain a professional, respectful, and high-quality expert community. In cases of misuse — including but not limited to inappropriate content, plagiarism, harmful behavior, or actions that undermine the community — the platform administrator reserves the right to remove content and/or suspend or remove a contributor's access, at their discretion.

Such actions may be taken without prior notice.

Termination of the Platform

The platform is funded and operated by the founder. The founder reserves the right to discontinue the platform and the community at any time, without prior notice.

In the event that the platform is discontinued, the founder has no obligation to maintain, archive, or preserve the platform's content or related materials.

This does not affect contributors' intellectual property rights to their own content.

Acceptance of Terms

By submitting, publishing, or otherwise contributing content to the platform, contributors confirm that they have read, understood, and accepted these Contributor Terms as part of the Bridgewright community.

---

In short: the platform owns the stage, contributors own their thinking — and together we build something greater than any single voice.